CENTRAL COAST WINE COMPETITION NOW ACCEPTING ENTRIES

MARCH 4, 2016, PASO ROBLES, CALIFORNIA - The Central Coast Wine Competition has announced that it is now accepting entries for the 2016 competition, which will take place June 14-16, 2016. The competition staff strongly encourages wineries to take advantage of the opportunity to enter the competition online at <http://cmsfw.fairmanager.com/>. The entry book, which details the entry classes and guidelines, can be found at the California Mid-State Fair webpage or the CCWC blog at <http://centralcoastwinecomp.com>.

The Central Coast Wine Competition is the largest evaluation event for wines produced exclusively on California's Central Coast and is hosted by seven fairs: The California Mid-State Fair, Contra Costa County Fair, Grand National Livestock Exposition, Horse Show and Rodeo, Monterey County Fair, San Benito County Fair, Santa Barbara County Fair and the Ventura County Fair. The 2016 competition features our new chief Judge Tim McDonald and an internationally renowned panel of judges including wine writers, winemakers, sommeliers and wine buyers.

The 2016 competition will run June 14 -16, 2016. For further information, refer to our wine blog at centralcoastwinecompetition.wordpress.com. Be sure to follow us on Facebook, Instagram and Twitter @CCWineComp
