

Today's Creative Living project comes to us from John Roper. John says, "We moved to Longmont in 2005 and a couple of years later I was at the Fair and saw the photo exhibit. Larry Shearer and Jim Bell of the long-time sponsor, St Vrain Photographic Society, were tending the show and suggested I enter photos the next year. I did and won a few ribbons. My wife, Barb and I have been in the show ever since and are currently the Supervisors of the exhibit. This year is a bummer but just wait till next year! A few years ago, the Longmont Airport hosted a "swooping" competition. Expert skydivers came in from all over the country to show their skills. They jumped from the plane, dove straight towards the ground, and at the last minute, leveled off and dragged their feet in a shallow pool to show flying, control, and athletic skills. Crazy. And a terrific action photo opportunity." Thank you for your submission, John!
