Breeding looking for Cody Stampede bull riding title

CODY, Wyo., July 1, 2019 --- The 100th Cody Stampede kicked off on Monday with some fast times and high-marked rides.

In order to accommodate the number of contestants entered at this year's rodeo, many of the ropers, steer wrestlers and barrel racers are competing outside of the rodeo performances in what is known as slack.

The highlight of Monday night's rodeo was watching bull rider Parker Breeding have an outstanding night. Breeding rode Summit Pro Rodeo's bull named Turnabout for 92.5 points, close to the arena record of 94 set by Wesley Silcox in 2011.

And, he wasn't the only Breeding in town. His dad, Scott Breeding is being honored as one of the rodeo legends here. The Bredings make their home at Edgar, Montana just over an hour from here. Father and son have both participated in the Cody Nite Rodeo to improve their skills. That has led to successful careers in the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association that includes eight Wrangler National Finals Rodeo qualifications – five for Scott Breeding and three for Parker Breeding.

Parker Breeding is currently third in the PRCA world standings and is likely headed to his fourth NFR. He hopes to bring home a gold buckle that has of yet eluded his family. A big check here will certainly help him in his quest and with over $350,000 up for grabs, he will get a nice amount for his eight-second ride.

Winning this rodeo has sentimental value for him as well. His father was the champion here in 1995 when Parker was just three years old. Even though it is during the busiest week of rodeo, it has been a place they get to spend some time together for as long as Parker can remember.

“This rodeo has always been one I wanted to win,” Parker said. “It pays really well and knowing that my dad was the champion here makes me want to win it even more.”

The newly partnered Clay Smith and Jade Corkill went into a tie for first place in the team roping Monday night. Brooks Dahozy from Window Rock, Arizona and Walt Woodard, from Stephenville, Texas, stopped the clock in 4.8 seconds during slack Monday morning. Then Smith, of Broken Bow, Oklahoma and Corkill of Fallon, Nevada matched that during the performance.

Smith is the reigning world champion header. Corkill has three gold buckles and Woodard has two in the heeling. While there are six world championships among these men, none of them has won the Cody Stampede yet.

The second rodeo performance of the Cody Stampede starts at 8 p.m. on July 2, 2019
