Supreme Champion & Champion 4-H Market Beef	1	13	Braden	Wheeler	Santa Lucia 4-H	77	It's clear this one's seen a lot of hard work and care at home. Not only is he presented exceptionally well, but get past a good haircoat and I still think there's a lot to appreciate. He strikes you with an intriguing look from the side and still reads truly practical in his rib and body. Getting critical, He could use a shot more mass through his stifle and tends to duck his pins in motion. But that's getting picky on a real good one.
Reserve Champion 4-H Market Beef	2	22	Sarafina	Treder	Templeton 4-H	078	I really like the fundamentals that this steer brings to the table. He's a stout footed, big boned calf who's the most expressive in his muscle shape and still hits you with a proportional look. He's a notch shorter strided out of his rear two and could use more time on feed to fill in his flank, but ultimately this is a really complete steer.
	3	7	Kayla	Hurl	Parkfield 4-H	071	This steer hits me as the easy feeding kind who I'd expect handles with an ideal level of finish and couples that with plenty of muscle to keep his yield grade in check. I like that he gets out on a stout set of feet and legs. Structurally though, I'd like to set him back in the angle of his shoulder and he reads a bit rounder out of his hip.
	4	16	Kayla	Hurl	Parkfield 4-H	072	This is a really nice profiling steer who's put together really well from a structural standpoint. Get in front of him and he reads with a lot of width and dimension, but I'm not sure he matches that from behind. I'd just like to give him a bit more power and shape throughout.
	5	20	Ty	Muller	El Paso de Robles 4-H	066	This steer checks the boxes as far as fundamentals go. I think he's got enough mass and I like his bodyshape and natural dimension. But he's a bit courser in the angle of his shoulder and rounder out of his hip. I wish he was a bit stouter boned to match his mass up high.
	6	21	Kenny	Muller	El Paso de Robles 4-H	065	This steer reads with an ideal level of finish and fills his tracks in motion. He just needs more power and shape to compete any higher in this class.
